ELEPHANTS FORM "FIRST-AID BRIGADE"

Washington, D. C.—Carl E. Akeley, African Explorer, in a communication to the National Geographic Society, at Washington, D. C., tells of an elephant "first-aid brigade" made up of the female elephants of a herd, which not only attempted to give succor to their "suffering" but went on "patrol duty" in an effort to punish his assailant.

While hunting elephants in Uganda, Mr. Akeley came upon a herd in a clearing, rounded up in close formation, conscious of the presence of an unseen enemy. "There were about 25 elephants, mostly cows, and just as I was on the point of backing off to a safe distance, thinking there were no big bulls in the lot, a fine pair of tusks appeared on the near side," he says. "A clump of bushes offered cover for a near approach, and I went in quickly to within 20 yards of him, and as his front leg was thrust forward offering a good opportunity for a heart shot, I fired both barrels of the double rifle in quick succession."

"All was confusion as I slipped my second rifle and, seeing there was no direct charge, retreated some 50 yards to the top of an ant hill, from which I could see what was going on. I then witnessed a scene such as I had heard described and which I had been keen to verify. A number of cows were clustered about the bull, for he had fallen 30 yards from where he was shot and with their tusks and trunks were doing their best to get him upon his feet. The remainder of the cows were doing patrol duty, rushing about in an increasing circle, searching for the source of the trouble. That meant me, so I retired to a safe distance and waited for the atmosphere to clear. This bull stood 11 feet and 4 inches high at the shoulder, and the tusks weighed 95 and 110 pounds respectively, while the circumference of the front foot at the sole was 61.2 inches, the largest recorded, I believe. "It is generally understood that large bull elephants are more frequently to be found apart from the herds, but our experience does not bear this out. Three bulls that we have shot, having tusks each weighing over 100 pounds, having been herd bulls. We have found the large old bulls enjoying the society and protection of large herds of cows and young animals. One splendid old bull well known in Uganda, who has been seen by many hunters, is so well protected by a large herd of most aggressive cows, who charge at the slightest intimation of danger, that he still survives. These old bulls are very rare, for when one has developed tusks of 50 pounds he becomes the target for every hunter, native or white, who sets eyes upon him; thus it is only the more crafty or timid individuals that, seeking the protection of large herds or clinging to the more inaccessible regions, such as dense forests, manage to survive to a ripe old age and develop a full growth of ivory."

"At another time, I was watching a herd from an ant hill, when from the cow line came a low, ominous rumble, like distant thunder, which was plain talk and meant trouble. A hasty glance around convinced us that there was but one thing to do, to stand and meet the charge from the elevation where we were and from which we could see. If we tried to escape to one side or to the forest we could see them over the high grass before they were upon us. They moved toward us, came half way and stopped. They had lost the wind, but immediately caught it again, and roaring and screaming with redoubled energy came into view over a slight rise. It was a disconcerting spectacle. Their great ears at full spread, trunks thrashing wildly, a roaring, screaming mass, 40 tons of frantic female elephant vengeance, the largest that I felt homesick. A rifle shot stopped the leader, but, encouraged by the others, she came on, only to be knocked down by the second shot. The others crowded about her, sniffed and—boiled. The old cow slowly regained her feet and staggered away, while we in deep gratitude returned to camp."

IMMENSE TONNAGE OF WATER FLOWS INTO FLORIDA STRAITS

Washington, D. C.—Ninety billion tons of water are carried hourly through the Straits of Florida by the Gulf Stream, according to Admiral John E. Pillsbury, U. S. N., in a communication to the National Geographic Society, at Washington, D. C. The stream, he says is probably the grandest and most mighty of any terrestrial phenomenon.

"If this one single hour's flow of water could be evaporated, the remaining salts would require many times more than all the ships in the world to carry it," says Admiral Pillsbury. "It is difficult for the mind to grasp the immensity of the great ocean river. When one is on board a vessel, floating upon its water, one is not as much impressed at the power and grandeur of this wonder of nature as he is when he stands before a towering mountain, an immense iceberg, or a fall of water such as Niagara, but when one remembers that the mighty torrent, speeding on hour by hour and day by day in a volume equal to all the largest rivers of the world combined, carrying its beneficent heat to temper the climate of continents, one begins to realize that of all the forces of the physical world none can equal this river of the ocean."

"It is interesting to note in the history of the Gulf Stream how great its influence has been on the fortune of the New World. Before the discovery of America, strange woods and fruits were frequently found on the shores of Europe. Some of these were seen by Columbus and to him were convincing evidence that strange lands were to the westward. These woods were carried by the Gulf Stream and by the prevailing winds from America, so that in part, the stream is responsible for the discovery of the New World. Ponce deLeon, while searching for the fountain of Youth, discovered this stream. He sailed southward along the coast of Florida thus stemming the current. He says they found a current that, though the wind was good, they could not stem. It seemed that their vessels were going fast through the water, but they were being driven back in spite of the strong and favorable wind. One ship was soon carried away by the current and lost from sight, although it was a clear sky."

"The theories as to the cause of ocean currents have been many. In recent times the course of currents has been laid to rivers and the Gulf Stream chiefly to the Mississippi. In actual fact about 2,000 such rivers would be required. In the tropical regions there is a steady movement of the air from east to west known as the trade winds. Winds blowing over the surface of the water induce a current in the latter due to friction. At first it is only the merest motion that moves, but gradually the motion is communicated from layer to layer until at last if the wind is long continued as in the trade wind region, the movement extends to lower depths, 300 or 400 feet, or perhaps more. These trade wind currents continue across the Caribbean until they reach the obstruction of the Honduras and Yucatan coasts, from which they escape into the Gulf of Mexico. "Another source of the Gulf Stream is the wave caused by the wind. Every ripple carries a certain amount of water in the direction toward which it is flowing. Irrespective of the current caused by its friction, and when the waves become large, tons of water are hurled from the crest into the trough every time the wave breaks. In a large area like the Caribbean, having a comparatively constant wind blowing over its whole surface, this action is practically a simultaneous movement of the surface waters to the westward."

"There is every evidence that the Gulf Stream is governed absolutely by law in all its variations; its course through the ocean is without doubt fixed, its fluctuations are by days, months, seasons, or by years, but they do not vary materially one year from the other. So we may conclude that of all the physical forces on this earth that are subject to any variations at all the great ocean currents are most immutable."

JULY IMPORTS SHOW INCREASE

Washington, Aug. 28.—Merchandise imported into the United States during July amounted to $169,178,133, the department of commerce announced today. Imports in July, 1913, and July, 1912, were, respectively, $139,061,170 and $148,666,728. Merchandise valued at $154,082,225 was exported last month, as compared with $160,990,778 in July of last year, and $148,885,355 in the same month of 1912.

PEACE LOOMS UP IN SAN DOMINGO

Washington, Aug. 28.—Peace loomed today in turbulent San Domingo, where President Bordas, has promised to resign and leaders of all elements agreed to disarm their followers and release political prisoners. The agreement was reached after conference between the contending leaders and the American peace commissioners.

ferences between the contending leaders and the American peace commissioners. Bordas will be succeeded by Ramon Baez as provisional president, who will conduct elections.

SWISS WIRELESS STATIONS CUT

Washington, Aug. 28.—Unofficial advice to the Swiss legation today stated that in the country districts of Switzerland citizens' guards have been organized for the protection of property, while boy scouts and school children were volunteering for the harvesting of the crops.

Antennae on all the Swiss wireless stations were cut soon after the outbreak of war for the double purpose of preserving neutrality and for national defense.
